EDITORIAL

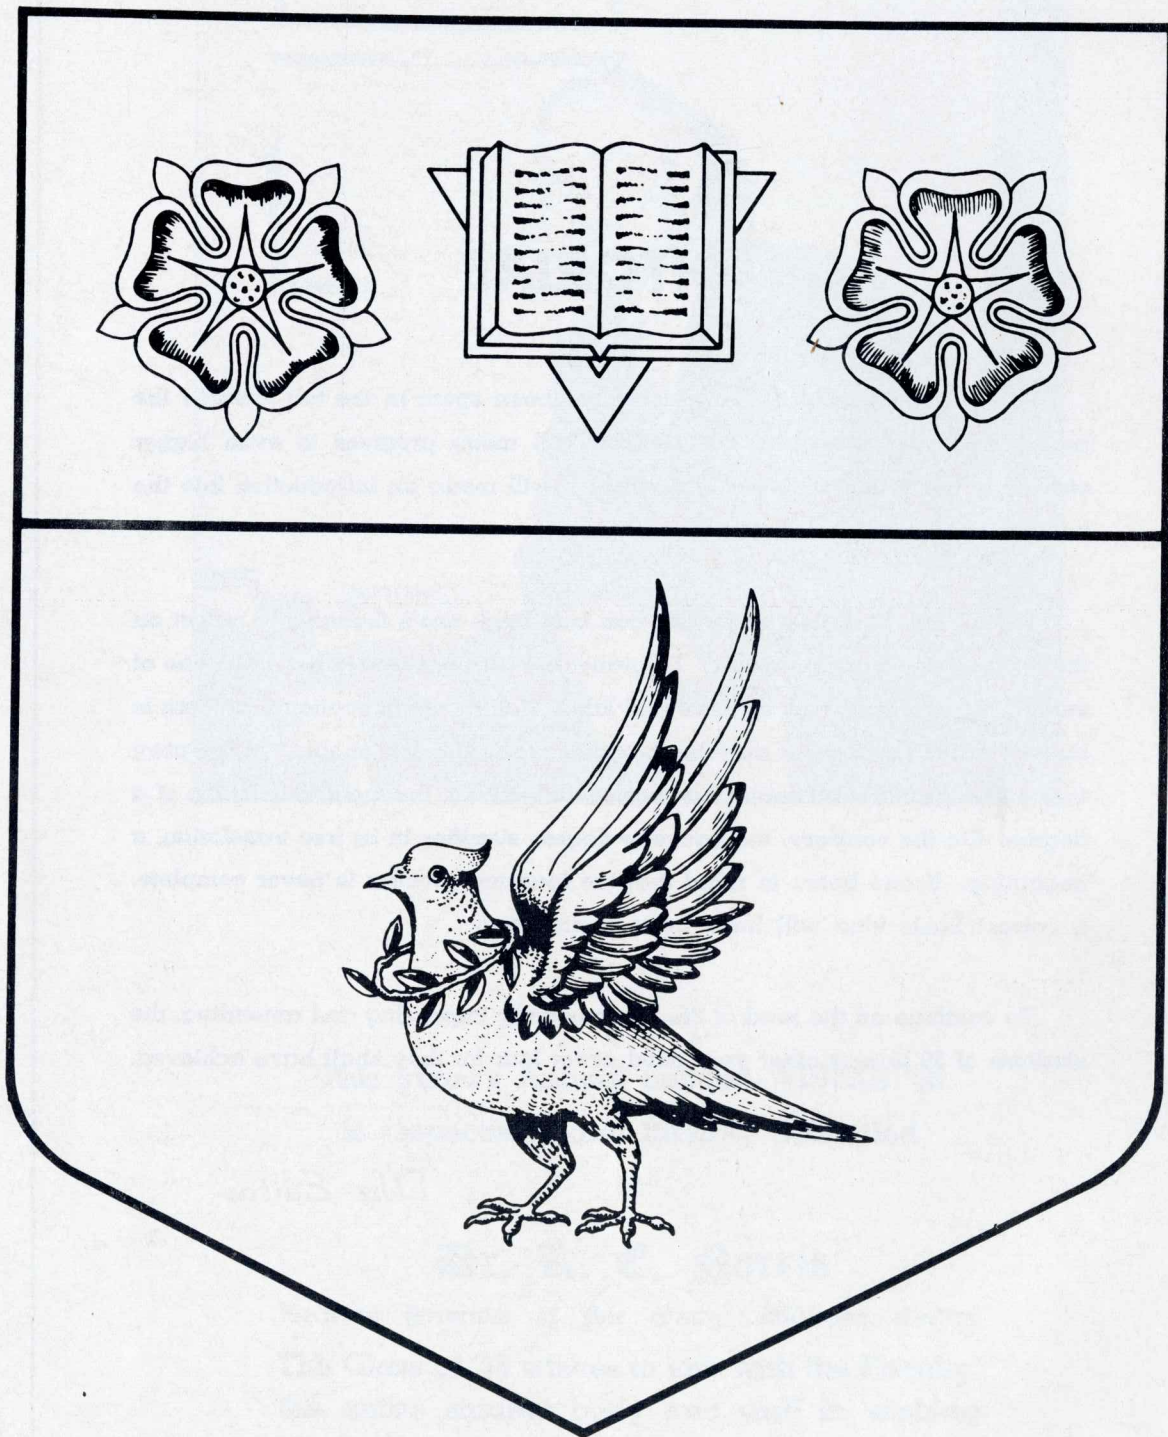

At last the eventful years which have been spent in the toil towards the bachelor degree are over. For some it will mean progress to even higher studies in the graduate fields—for others it will mean an introduction into the business and technical world.

For all this is a time when one can cast back one's thoughts to reflect on the value of the past few years. To many, the past few years has been one of endless (or seemingly so) lectures and labs. This recent educational process is one for which the student may be thankful. However, one should not fall prey to the idea that the millenium has been reached with the mere acquisition of a degree. On the contrary, the bachelor degree signifies in its free translation, a beginning. If one bears in mind that the learning process is never complete, a correct basic idea will have been assimilated.

To continue on the road of life by constantly improving and amending, the students of 56 or any other year need never fear for they shall have achieved.

VISTAS - 1956

Dear Mr. Editor:

This will be the last letter I shall address to the student body through the medium of your Annual.

As I do so my mind is filled with two things:

First of all, the new building. We have been looking forward to occupying this building for so many years, and preparing for it for so many years, that it has a tendency to preempt our thinking. Now that we have got the new building and the contractors are almost finished their work we are very pleased with the result, and we have not as yet begun to discover the flaws in our planning. These will occur, but, in the meantime, let us all be grateful for the new building and the dozens of laymen who have made it possible.

Second my approaching retirement. I am very sorry that this had to happen for reasons of ill health, and I will regret my leaving the College more than I can tell. Working with its staff has, indeed, been a pleasure, and I will miss being a member of the team. The relationship in my case between faculty and student and administrative staff has been all that I could desire, and I now offer it my very best wishes for the new regime which is to follow.

Very truly yours,

K. E. Norris

Dear Dr. Norris:

PRESIDENT:

The year 1956 will always be a most significant one for the members of our graduating class. We are graduating after what has been one of the most eventful and historic years for Sir George Williams College.

1ST VICE PRESIDENT:

IAN D. MURPHY

We are truly grateful to the College, the faculty, and the administrative staff for all that they have assisted us in accomplishing - the development of our education, our personalities, our characters and our philosophies of life. We feel that this development is due in no small way to the liberal philosophy evidenced in our College in the unique informal relationship between students and faculty members.

2ND VICE PRESIDENT:

ARTHUR R. MANN

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY

BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS

By

DEAN HENRY F. HALL

To the Class of 1956

Matthew 6:21 "For where your treasure is there will your heart be also."

At the graduation ceremonies of some colleges the new graduates are told that they are, "Now admitted to the company of educated people." This afternoon I would like to consider briefly some aspects of what it may mean to be an educated person.

To some the possession of a degree is a disappointment. People do not necessarily give great respect to one simply because he is a college graduate. The words of the learned are not always regarded with special favour even in one's own family and circle of friends. No mysterious change takes place with the conferring of a degree no matter how exalted the degree itself, or the conferring institution, may be. Of course we all recognize this as true in general, and yet, I believe the average college graduate is often disappointed when he finds that being one of this "company of educated people" really makes him no different than he was before. May I remind you, therefore, of a thing which I hope you are already fully aware; namely, that one's real education consists fundamentally of the habits of thought and action, of the attitudes and the abilities, that he possesses. No degree, or number of degrees, can make us one whit more educated than the sum total of the attitudes and abilities that we have developed.

What, then, are the qualities that we as educated people (with degrees or without them) should strive to develop? To this question I can only give my own answer realizing that many good and honest people may hold different views. However, I speak, I hope, with due humility recognizing my own frequent failure to reach the ideals I propose. On the other hand, I shall try to speak honestly and with the hope that you regard me as a friend.

Jesus said, "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth." We frequently misunderstand this because we are so bound to material terms. We forget that one can eat, and wear and use only a small amount of the world's goods. What can be done with the most beautiful things of the world except to look at them? As Carlyle said, one would need the whole universe to himself to be happy with material things alone. "Try him," he says, "with half a universe and he soon starts quarreling with the proprietor of the other half and declares himself the most maltreated of men."

So! I believe that the meek inherit the earth in the real sense — in the sense that they and they only are able to appreciate the earth and the good things in it. Even the Nazis might have enjoyed the art treasures of Europe if they had allowed other people to enjoy them as well instead of plundering them to satisfy their own selfishness. The educated person should be "meek" and he will inherit the earth because, I think, he will realize that material things can never be a part of us but that their appreciation always is.

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal . . . for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." The best I can wish for you is that you will treasure the things of the mind and of the spirit.

After this perhaps too solemn note, let us look a little further at the mark of the educated person in relation to himself. I believe that the educated person should be humble in attitude not only for the sake of others but also for his own sake. It seems to me that one of the great satisfactions of education is the development of the sense of wonder. At least, this should be one of the results of education. Incidentally, I pray that no "intellectual snobs" may ever graduate from Sir George Williams College. Rather may our students retain that youthful quality of wonder, of finding satisfaction in the progressive discovery of truth and beauty in the universe. Do you remember the words of John Keats in his most striking sonnet?

"Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken;
Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
He stared at the Pacific"

To very few is given the privilege of discovering a new planet, or anything else of that sort, but to everyone and everyday may come the thrill of new discovery, when he feels like some watcher of the skies.

In a radio play one of the characters said, in discussing education, "The main thing about education is that it is a sort of habit." Yes, certainly, it is! In fact, to me the essence of good educational theory is found in the concept that education is a way of life — a system of habits — and not in the memorizing of facts and "subjects." This is not only good education but good religion; "For a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth," either in his safety deposit box or in his head. Rather, a person's worth, both to others and to himself, consists of the kind of person he really is and of what he can do for the world he lives in.

Some of you know full well that education is a habit. You started years ago attending college in the evening. Study, to you has become a habit that you can't get away from.

I have no fear that you will stop developing along the lines which you have started. To others I would say that I hope that, for you too, graduation is a beginning and not an end. Carlyle wrote, "That one man should die ignorant who had the capacity for knowledge, this I call tragedy." This is true, but an even greater tragedy is that so many should start an education and let it wither like a blossom that has been blasted before the fruit has even set. I hope that for all of you the voyage of discovery will continue and that you will often feel, "Like some watcher of the skies when a new planet swims into his ken."

May we go a step further now and look at the educated person in relation to his community — the immediate society in which he lives. It seems as though every thoughtful person must recognize the challenge of this time. Twice during the lifetime of many of us we have seen the youth of this, and other, nations go forth to meet the challenge. And the great wonder remains that so many people seem willing to die for their ideals and their country and yet so few seem willing to live for them. Some young people with whom I have discussed this say that they are willing to live for their country but don't quite know how. Perhaps the great appeal of totalitarianism is that it tells people how. Youth are mustered and paraded and ordered what to do. What have we in democracy to offer as a "Moral equivalent" of this militarism?

One evening long ago I walked along the street with a young RCAF sergeant who had just returned from four years service overseas. He said to me, "It is good to walk on Canadian soil. It makes you want to do something about it." I am hopeful about the ideals of our youth. They really want, "to do something about it." But what shall we tell them to do? Well, one thing the educated person can do is to meet his obligations. He can start where he is and do well the things he knows he ought to do. This sounds too easy and simple, I know; but, believe me, many of us fall down in our duty because we do not do the little and simple things as well as we might and as well as we know we could and should do them.

Do you remember the parable of the talents? To some were given many talents and to some few. Some hid them away and did not use them but to one, even though he had few, came to commendation, "Well done thou good servant because thou hast been faithful in very little" Is it not a mark of the truly educated person that he uses whatever talents and abilities he has? He is faithful in even the very little. Young people today, as in every day, are faced with many personal problems — problems of vocation and adjustment, problems of marriage and a home. These are real problems and I hope that you individually will be happy in finding satisfactory solutions to them; but no problem is greater than that of using the best of your abilities and personal talents which you have been given. "Do the duty which lies nearest which thou knowest to be a duty," and "whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."

Finally, what is the educated person's relation to the whole world? Surely no lesson of our day is clearer than that this is one world. The educated person should be the first to proclaim and to live out his world citizenship. Professor Conklin, biologist of Princeton, wrote, "Biology and the Bible agree that God hath made of one blood all nations of men." The false doctrine that there are permanently inferior and superior races has no foundation in true religion or in true science and we who call ourselves educated should say it often.

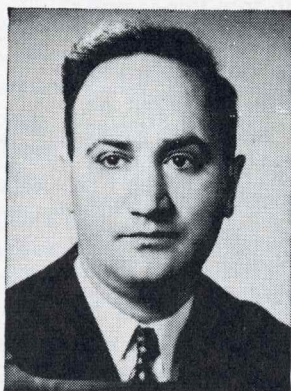

At Harvard University there is a gate which has engraved on the outside these words "Enter to grow in wisdom." As one goes out of the gate he sees on it the admonition that I would like you to consider my message to you today; "Go forth" it says, "Go forth to serve thy country and mankind."

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

by Daniel E. Presley

The complex diversity of ideas, attitudes and sentiments of the students comprising the class of '56 can most likely be summarized in the concepts—retrospection, gratitude and anticipation.

In looking over our undergraduate careers at Sir George Williams College, it would be a sad mistake to consider this convocation the conclusion of our education. It is rather a plateau in the ongoing process of learning, a plateau or pause that should be utilized to evaluate the direction of our lives.

Through our personal effort, and through the effort of educators, parents and friends the basis of an education is at this point realized. However, the way in which this foundation is used in consistently seeking the enhancement of our way of life, is education.

Dr. H. F. Hall recently stated that "we must not confuse degrees and diplomas with education and development." To have a degree is not to be educated; furthermore to be educated one does not necessarily have to hold a piece of paper from a University.

Education and development infer an awakened interest with a searching attitude; in short change and growth; not staidness and disintegration. We have been given the fundamentals of education. What we as individuals will do with the fundamentals time will indicate.

The educational pause is an apt time to express gratitude to parents and supporters who have ably assisted in the developmental program of the students receiving degrees and diplomas this evening—gratitude is your due. John Milton states thusly, "A grateful mind by owing owes not, but still pays, at once indebted and discharged."

Yet, what further? Anticipation. Here we are 312 strong, each set in his individual mounting about to be propelled into an occupational orbit, over which we have much but not entire control wherein we can express a great degree of free-will but find ourselves partially governed by contrived environmental conditions on the one level and natural law on a superior plane.

Those of my compeers who have been attending evening college may realize their orbit in the form of another area of endeavour with surer responsibility. For one this orbit will be business, for others it will be law, for others the direction will be education as graduate students or teachers. In any circumstance we may in future find ourselves, it is certain that we will be able to maintain confidence, for, we have had the stimulating example of competent leaders in the administration and faculty of this institution.

And so, with reminiscent patterns of faces, facts and facetiae; with gratitude to our supporters; and in anticipation of fuller achievement—we the class of '56 bid you Sir George Williams College, Ave Atque Vale, hail and farewell.

Another hectic year has drawn to a close for the Day Executive.

Elected by the students in the spring and with four more additions in the fall elections; the SUS Executive is the highest governing body in the day division and thus has some measure of control over the clubs and activities of the College. Its big job is to administer the students' funds and grant budgets to the clubs and various committees such as Frosh Week, Winter Carnival, American Exchange and Social Committee.

The executive's main projects this year were: the amendments to the SUS constitution, formulation of an Election Policy, plus the Student Executive Orientation Conference, held jointly by the SUS and ESA up in Morin Heights before school opened to familiarize the incoming executives with their jobs.

Membership in the National Federation of Canadian University Students was maintained with Sir George playing host to the Quebec Regional NFCUS conference, as well as being awarded the National NFCUS conference to be held in the New College building early next year.

The extra-curricular scene opened with a bang as Frosh Week, under Stu McEvoy, got underway. This was followed by the gala Christmas Ball in the Windsor Hotel. The Winter Carnival, was a week-long programme which featured Crowning of the Carnival Queen, a Variety Show in Budge Hall, Snow Sculpturing contest, Day Up North at Mont Gabriel, and topped off with the Carnival Dance in the Regiment de Chateauguay Armoury.

The SUS Executive-elect was eventually ratified by a Student Referendum. Morty Bistrisky was successful in the election and will serve as the President for 1956-57.

Student interest in the SUS picked up near the end of the second term with the formulation of the Student Action League to raise interest in student activities. It was probably through their efforts that the elections were so well supported. All these activities, in addition to as many as four meetings a week, made for an immense amount of work for the day executive.

This year saw the official opening of our New College Building so that Sir George Williams College, at last, has a home of its own. From now on students will be able to point with pride to this structure which has been presented to us by the people of Montreal community leaders and educators. We should all be very thankful for their generosity and thought.

The 1955-56 Evening Students' Association's curricular year has been a year of experiments, of re-organization, and of re-appraisal.

The most successful experiments were the Students' Leadership Conference and the Dance With The Owls. The Conference, held during the month of September was the first joint day and evening conference ever held. Although the programme contained orientation, leadership, and parliamentary procedure seminar studies, it achieved, this year, through its informality the greatest degree of cooperation between the day and the evening executives ever witnessed on our campus. The Dance With The Owls, the first dance ever entirely organized by evening students was held in mid-March and proved to be a great success; approximately three hundred persons attended the Dance of which two thirds were evening students.

Re-organization took its base upon the complete revision of the constitution. Among the sweeping changes were the admittance of all college partial students to our society necessitating a change in our name from the Evening Undergraduate Society to the Evening Students' Association, the lowering of the student fee from $5.00 to $3.00 per student per year, the introduction of class representatives, the setting-up of definite committees and their respective work, the clarification of the individual executive officers' duties, and many other items which set the E.S.A. on a sounder basis than it has ever been.

Reappraisal occurred in the curricular fields of Athletics and in Clubs. The E.S.A. not being satisfied with the evening athletic status, a committee was set-up which, with the cooperation of outside interested parties, was instrumental in correcting the situation. From facilities of only one night's use of gym and pool, the programme extended the one additional evening's use of not only the gym and the pool but also all other facilities of the Central Y.M.C.A. In Clubs, through the newly formed E.S.A. Clubs Co-Ordinating Committee, a Clubs' Policy was formulated under which all future evening clubs will operate. A study was made of equipment used by Clubs, such as projectors, loudspeakers, record players, etc., and certain recommendations were made to the Faculty Council. Clubs are already benefiting from these recommendations in the new building.

Work is still continuing in two other committees: Insurance Investigating and Problems and Suggestions; no doubt next year's students will be the beneficiaries of it.

The E.S.A. has again this year joined with the S.U.S. in presenting such standard joint events as the Christmas Ball, the Winter Carnival, and the Spring Prom. with the usual success.

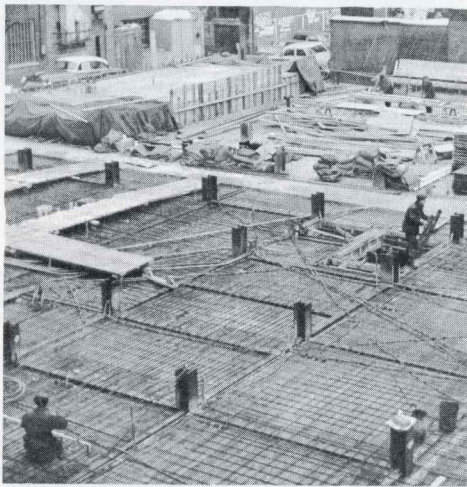

The Film Society, the Asian Study Group, the West Indian Society, the Ukrainian Students' Society, the International Relations Club, the Literary Society, the Music Appreciation Group, were to name a few, examples of the type Clubs, either wholly or partly along with the S.U.S. sponsored by the E.S.A. They are to be commended for one of the best years in Clubs activities in the evening.

The 1955-56 E.S.A. Executive was more concerned this year with organizational work than has been customary in past petty politically ridden years. If for nothing else the 1955-56 Executive has set a pattern of endeavor and hard work which will be difficult to better in future years.

This year's Winter Carnival was noted for the infinite variety of entertainments which it provided. From a highly interesting exhibit of products from the sunnier climes to the invigoration of the Laurentian outing — it was a pronounced success from start to finish. During the mid-week a Tea Dance, Variety Night, and a West Indian display occupied Georgians to their infinite enjoyment.

The week was climaxed with the Carnival Dance where the Queen, Marge Oliver and her attendants reigned supreme over the proceedings at the Chateaugay Armoury. As two o'clock rolled round Georgians wended their way home, tired but happy, after a most successful Winter Carnival Week.

THE GEORGIAN

It is the proud boast of the staff members of The Georgian, that they are "Canada's best college weekly". And to back up this claim, they point to the Jacques Bureau Trophy, awarded annually "for general excellence", to a paper publishing once a week or less.

The award was made at the closing banquet of the annual conference of the Canadian University Press, held this year in Quebec City. Judging this year was carried out by Mr. William Thompson, Editor of The Regina Leader-Post; Mr. E. C. Phelan, Managing Editor of The Toronto Globe and Mail; and Mr. Eric Wells, Managing Editor of The Winnipeg Tribune.

They commented that The Georgian seemed to cover the campus activities adequately and that its pages were well laid out. They approved of the use of an editorial cartoon, and commented that writing was on a generally high level. The Georgian only won the trophy by one point, beating the Mac-Master Silhouette. There were only four points separating the first four places in the competition. In all, 14 papers from all parts of Canada competed.

Some 22 students newspapers were represented at the CUP conference, held from December 22 through 30th. Fifty-one editors took part in the plenary and commission meetings.

Aside from the trophy competitions, greatest attention was focused on freedom of the student press. A report made by Gordon Vichert, Co-Editor of The Silhouette, gave a controversial listing of how each college newspaper stacked up against the rest with regards to freedom of operations from faculty and student councils. The survey was made from reports turned in by each paper. The Georgian placed sixth on Mr. Vichert's listing.

A resolution that the member papers adopt "an editorial policy strongly in favour of freedom of the student press from control of contents by the students councils and/or the university administration", was passed by a narrow margin, only after hot debate on Mr. Vichert's list and on how much freedom a college paper should be allowed.

Opponents of the policy were led by Le Carabin, of Laval University, who said that they could not endorse any policy purporting to make college newspapers no longer responsible to officers of the university.

Other business handled by the conference included the rejection of a Toronto Varsity proposal to publish a special newspaper at next year's conference. The projected publication would have contained student news and views from across Canada and would have been distributed on every campus in the country. Although delegates endorsed the idea in principle, they also decided not to undertake the project this time.

Lord Beaverbrook, a legendary figure who rose from humble beginnings in New Brunswick to control a vast newspaper empire, was elected honorary president of the CUP.

UKRAINIAN STUDENTS' CLUB

(JOINT)

President: G. R. B. PANCHUK, M.B.E.

The origin of the Ukrainian Students' Club at Sir George Williams College goes back to about 1951-52. Among the early students who devoted much time to organizing the Club were Julian Zalizniak and Eugene Plawiuk, both of whom are now graduates, and Leo Wynnycky, who was elected first president.

The purpose of the Club, according to the constitution, is: "To promote the study of Ukrainian culture and its contribution to Canadian cultural development through sponsoring or organizing of lectures, debates, discussions, displays, reading clubs, concerts, publications and other similar activities".

It may be a matter of interest that similar clubs exist at the following universities: McGill University, University of Montreal, University of Toronto, University of Ottawa, McMaster University, Universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. As well as at universities in the United States and in Europe.

The early activities of the Club were mostly social in nature, and provided an opportunity for students of meeting together in a spirit of good fellowship and a common cultural and traditional atmosphere. The first annual "Ukrainian Georgians' Ball" was held in 1954.

On February 6, 1955, the same executive, re-elected to office, embarked on a more ambitious program by way of sponsoring a "Ukrainian Week" program. The "Week" proved to be a big success. "Ukrainian Week" programs of a similar nature had already been presented at McGill University and at other universities across Canada.

The second "Ukrainian Week" program of activities at the College was held February 20th to 25th, inclusive, this year. It included a concert of Ukrainian religious songs and national folk dances, showings of a new Canadian film, "Treasures of Ukraine", and addresses by Mr. Claude S. Richardson, B.A., M.A., LL.B., Q.C., M.P., and the Honorable Senator Wm. M. Wall, B.A., B.Ed., M.A. A presentation of record albums was also made to Sir George Williams College record Library. This second annual "Ukrainian Week" was under the patronage of Mr. Pylyp Kenoval, V.C., Dr. K. E. Norris, Principal of the College; Prof. G. W. Simpson, Head of the Dept. of History at the University of Saskatchewan Alpha Omega Club; Senator Wm. M. Wall; Hon. J. W. Pickersgill, Minister of Citizenship and Immigration; Hon. G. C. Marler, Minister of Transport; Members of Parliament — M. Starr, C. Richardson, J. Decore, W. Hamilton, F. Zaplitny and A. Holowach, and His Worship, Jean Drapeau, Mayor of Montreal.

The Club is now looking forward with anticipation to a new year and a still more extensive program of activities during the forthcoming season.

The origin of the Ukrainian Students' Club at Sir George Williams College goes back to about 1951-52, when the preparatory work for organizing the Club was first begun. Among the early students who devoted much time to organizing the Club were Julian Zalizniak and Eugene Plawiuk, both of whom are now graduates, and Leo Wynnycky, who was elected first president.

The early activities of the Club were mostly social in nature, and provided an opportunity for students to meet together in a traditional atmosphere. The first annual "Ukrainian Georgians' Ball" was held in 1954.

The second annual general meeting of the Club was held at the College on February 6, 1955, when the same executive, re-elected to office, embarked on a more ambitious program by way of sponsoring a "Ukrainian Week" program. This proved to be a big success. "Ukrainian Week" programs of a similar nature had already been presented at McGill University with considerable success, and events of that nature were, of course, very much more common in the universities of Western Canada, particularly the Universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In the spring of 1955 an exhibition of Ukrainian arts and handicrafts, particularly Easter Eggs, national costumes and embroidereis, was on display at the College Library for two weeks, from April 2nd to April 16th.

It may be a matter of interest that similar clubs exist at the following universities: McGill University, University of Montreal, University of Toronto, University of Ottawa, McMaster University, Universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, as well as universities in the United States and in Europe.

The second "Ukrainian Week" program of activities at the College was held February 20th to 25th, inclusive, this year. It included a concert of Ukrainian religious songs and national folk dances, showings of a new Canadian film, "Treasures of Ukraine", and addresses by Mr. Claude S. Richardson, B.A., M.A., L.L.B., Q.C., M.P., and the Honorable Senator Wm. M. Wall, B.A., B.Ed., M.A. A presentation of record albums was also made to Sir George Williams College record Library.

The Club is now looking forward with anticipation to a new year and a still more extensive program of activities during the forthcoming season. In particular it is hoping special effort will be made to do some work with the summer school students. The Club also hopes to take an active part in the campaign, soon to be initiated, for a separate Students' Union Building at Sir George Williams College.

UNIVERSITY CONTINGENT (Navy)

The SGWC Contingent of the COTC

Mess President: J. Saunders.

The aim of the C.O.T.C. is to qualify selected university students for a commission in one of the corps in the Canadian Army, Active or Militia, depending on the educational requirements of the particular corps.

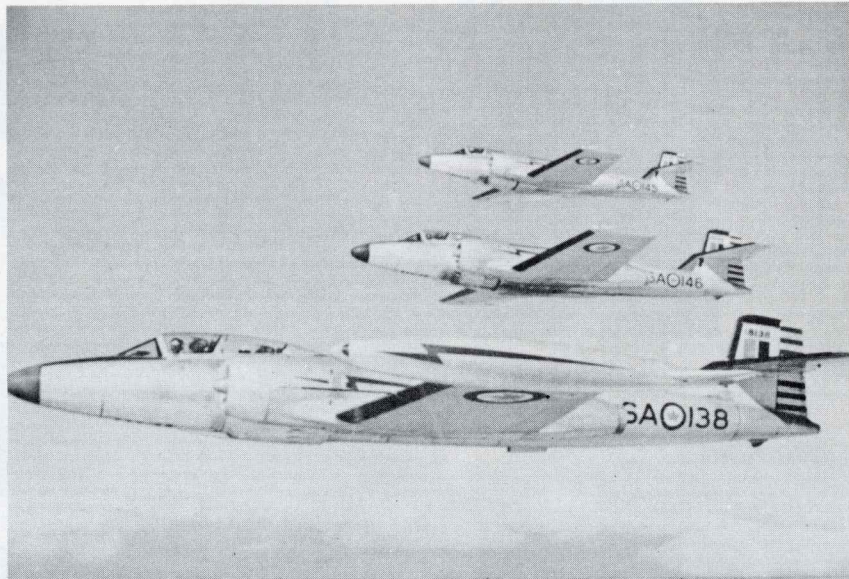

Those accepted in the C.O.T.C. are taken on strength as Officer Cadets, retaining this status until they have completed two successful summers at a summer camp. These summer camps are spread throughout Canada. An Officer Cadet's summer camp location depends solely on what corps of the army he joins. For example The Royal Canadian School of Infantry is situated at Borden, Ontario; The Royal Canadian School of Artillery at Shilo, Manitoba; and The Royal Canadian School of Engineering at Chilliwack, British Columbia.

This year the contingent completed the cycle started in 1953 with many recruits of that year receiving their commissions. The full course of training from 'green' recruit to commissioned officer is now complete. The cadets have now returned to Sir George to begin training for promotion to Lieutenant. The final year of training or third phase is in two parts. The first consists of courses in military history and geography with lectures on current affairs, these to be taken during the college year. The second part is the practical summer training. This summer training is spent with an active unit of the student's corps, a posting generally of personal choice. Every year some lucky candidate or candidates receive rewards for outstanding work in the form of a posting with the Canadian Infantry Brigade in Europe.

Today, although Sir George William's College contingent is still rather small in size it holds a unique position in the field of contingents in being probably the only contingent in Canada with a Mess devoid of college property. This Mess could be a striking image of your own livingroom at home, soft lights, beautifully paneled walls, pastel coloured ceilings, air conditioning, as well as many other great attributes. A place that all members can be proud to be associated with. The contingent will grow with pride, for it has much to be proud of.

A great many cadets have passed through the Sir George Contingent. They have all made good officers. They have left a strong record behind them; one of challenge to future groups; a may to success for those that follow in their footsteps.

The University Naval Training Divisions

H. M. C. S. "Donnacona"

Staff Officer: Sub-Lieutenant D. Bray

Gunroom Mess President: Cadet C. Mallory

The University Naval Training Divisions have been established to select and train suitable young university students for commissioned rank in all branches of the Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve). Entry is open to all suitable male undergraduates attending Canadian Universities and Colleges who have officer-like qualities and a sound academic record. They undergo a 3 year course of training at naval divisions during the academic year, and afloat and ashore during the summer months. Undergraduates are entered in the specialist branch of their allied academic field, and the Commanding Officer of the UNTD selects probationary cadets.

During the first year of training, all UNTD probationary cadets appear before a selection board, to determine their suitability for commissioned rank.

To qualify for a commission, cadets must train during two summers of their service, ashore and afloat. The first summer is a general course for all personnel, closely integrated with first year divisional drills. During the second summer, the training is specialised, and cadets attend courses in Halifax, or Esquimalt.

Upon graduation, and successful completion of the UNTD training programme, cadets are promoted to the rank of sub-lieutenant and appointed to a naval division on either the Active or Retired list.

Sir George Williams Naval Cadets form part of the University Naval Training Divisions of HMCS "Donnacona". Last year, in competition with Cadets from all others Colleges and Universities in the Montreal Area, Georgians cadets won two of the four top prizes. The total strength of the "Donnacona" UNTD is 150, which includes 15 Georgians.

The SGWC RCAF (Reserve) Flight, McGill University Reserve Sq.

Flight Lieutenant R. A. Fraser.

The purpose of the RCAF University Training Plan offered to both men and women undergraduates is to provide a flow of trained University undergraduates into the commissioned ranks of the RCAF, Regular and Reserve, and to provide the undergraduates with practical training in citizenship at a level commensurate with their academic attainments.

The RCAF has established a University Squadron at McGill University. Individual students from McGill University, Sir George Williams College, Loyola College, Macdonald College and Bishops University may be accepted into the McGill Squadron. All undergraduates accepted are enrolled as Flight Cadets in the RCAF (Primary Reserve) and upon completion of successful training are granted the Queen's Commission. To be eligible for the UTRP, a candidate must be able to complete three consecutive summers of training with the RCAF.

The training programme consists of formal summer training and practical employment at RCAF units or stations for a maximum of 22 weeks of each of 3 consecutive summers. In addition, Flight Cadets receive lectures during each of the 3 winter terms prior to the summer programme. The winter training takes the form of one 2 hour lecture period per week commencing in October and terminating in March.

There are various features to this programme which have proven to be quite attractive to students. The assurance of well-paid, summer, employment for each of three summers, the opportunity of earning the Queen's Commission and being prepared to assume a leadership role in time of a national emergency plus the chance of becoming a full-time career officer in the armed services are all enhanced by the fact that every opportunity is taken to give the members of this plan full social and recreational facilities. These features build up a real sense of camaraderie and spirit of co-operation which results in a fuller development of character and personality.

Although the number of students at SGWC who, have availed themselves of this opportunity is relatively small, it can be truly said that they have gained a great deal from their experiences. Travel, training and personal benefit are the keynotes, and it is hoped that more students will take advantage of this opportunity in the future.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

President: Ross Gledhill

The Sir George Williams College chapter of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship was organized in 1946. It is one of many similar groups in universities throughout the world whose object is to unite men and women, who are earnestly desiring to extend Christ's Kingdom at home or abroad.

The group has a three-fold purpose: to deepen and strengthen the spiritual life of students through fellowship in daily prayer meetings and weekly Bible studies; to help other students to find personal faith and purpose in life in Jesus Christ as their Savior and Lord; and to stress for world-wide missions.

During 1955-56 the IVCF has joined with the Student Christian Movement and the YMCA Fellowship Society in providing daily Chapel Services for the College students. A high point of the College year was the series of three Christmas Carol Services conducted by the IVCF in conjunction with the same two groups.

THE LIBERAL CLUB

President: Morty Bistrisky

The Liberal Club of Sir George Williams College enjoyed a highly successful and interesting freshman year. At the first meeting, at which Mr. Claude Richardson, Q.C., M.P., was the guest speaker, the executive was elected.

The programs for the year were both interesting and informative. They included such speakers as Prof. H. F. Quinn, Professor of Social and Political Sciences at the college; Mr. Jack Greenstein, president of the Canadian University Liberal Federation; and as previously mentioned, Mr. Claude Richardson. Other events of the years program included debates, discussions, and reports.

The members of the club, after such a successful first year, are looking towards next year with great hope and optimism. An early start will assure yet another year of political information and enjoyment.

UNITARIAN CLUB

President: F. J. Hunnius

The Unitarian Club has held two kinds of meeting during the year 1955-56. The first kind, talks of an introductory type, have been given on two occasions at Sir George to explain Unitarian attitudes. The second kind, regular weekly talks and discussions, have been held in conjunction with other clubs such as the McGill Unitarian Students Centre on Peel Street. These later talks have been given by men such as Dr. Bella of McGill University who spoke on "Comparative Religion".

The Unitarian Club is based on the idea that religion should be reasonable and universal in its attitude; that religions should be democratic in government, and should preach human brotherhood rather than creeds and outworn mythologies.

STUDENT CHAPTER OF THE CHEMICAL INSTITUTE OF CANADA (C.I.C.)

President: Keith Seaman

The activities of the C.I.C. got underway early in November when Mr. Frank K. Rogers, M.C.I.C., from the Montreal Chapter, spoke on "The Aims and Progress of the C.I.C.". This was especially directed toward new members, but also gave older members an idea of what the C.I.C. can do for them upon graduation.

The first trip out of town took place in December. This was a trip to the C.I.L. research laboratories in Beloeil, Que. There the students saw many aspects of chemical research on such products as paints, nylon, fertilizer, and several others.

The second term began with a trip to the National Research Council laboratories in Ottawa. The turnout was large and the trip was very interesting.

On March 2nd, Prof. J. Ufford spoke to the members on the topic "Is Science in Danger?" This was a very interesting talk on the dangers to science from the political, educational, and industrial points of view. Other events were held in March and April, but no details were available at the time this was written.

At the end of the term, the graduating members of the C.I.C. are awarded Junior memberships in the C.I.C. which are retained if they go on to various chemical careers in 1957.

STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT

President: Craig Neylan

The Student Christian Movement at Sir George Williams College is a self-governing unit of the SCM of Canada. It is an "open movement", open to all who will tolerate different viewpoints and who desire to share in community life at our College. At the heart of the Movement there is a firm conviction that in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ the purpose of life has been made clear. The SCM welcomes the questioning of a sincere inquirer as a challenge to loosely held assumptions and as a medium in which truth is revealed.

The SCM also provides the ecumenical frame work for the Protestant communions on the campus, under the Canadian Council of Churches. Co-operation with such groups as the Canterbury Club manifests this spirit.

The program of the Movement has included: study groups meeting weekly, support of missions, a Faculty Series, leadership in the two daily College Chapel Services, and participation in the activities of the SCM National Council.

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman Club is the official Roman Catholic organization in the College, and it has been in progressive operation since Jack Walsh and his colleagues drew up its first constitution four years ago.

The membership is automatic for all Roman Catholic students at Sir George Williams College, and its active members are those who have paid the nominal fee required by the International Newman Federation.

The association has a three-fold purpose: to foster the religious, intellectual, and social interests of its members.

Canon Carter and his two associates, appointed by the Bishop of Montreal, are the chaplains whose duty it is to assist the members in the performance of their religious obligations and to give spiritual advice.

The social activities, both organized and spontaneous, are numerous and varied. The members are proud of the annual Newman Ball, sponsored by the McGill Newman Club, as one of their major activities. The Georgian members take advantage of the privilege offered them and use the Newman House on Peel Street as the centre for many of their programmes.

Debates and music appreciation sessions are held regularly and the Newman library is well equipped for everyone who wishes to make use of it.

THE FILM SOCIETY

President: Mr. Jack Poirier

"I wish I was a movie star,
I wish a lot of things,
I wish that life was like the movies are."

A. P. Herbert.

The Film Society, one of the oldest clubs still in existence on the campus, has made it a direct aim of its presentation policy to remove the above phantasmagoric illusions. The purpose of the Society has been to promote the study of the film as an art and as a medium of information and education through the projection of features of international acclaim and also through the preparation of program notes and film evaluations by members of the Executive. Through the eye of the camera, the Society has shown students of this College an extensive view of the varieties of human culture and the unity of mankind from China to Peru, depicting each anxious moment, each eager strife and each achievement.

Through the efforts of its executive, the Film Society—a joint day and evening college endeavour—has just completed the best year of its existence. From an active membership of around seventy students in 1954-55, the number has risen this year to approximately one hundred and thirty.

Feature-film presentations have included: "HAMLET", "RASHOMON", "OX-BOW INCIDENT", "INTOLERANCE", "LE PETIT MONDE DE DON CAMILLO", "HOW GREEN WAS MY VALLEY", "GRAPES OF WRATH", "KAMERADSHAFT", "LES ENFANTS D'HIROSHIMA", and "PAISAN". A new departure this year was a "Night" devoted entirely to the great documentary film maker, Flaherty—a Canadian who has attained world-wide fame. Three of his films were featured: "GREEN MOUNTAINS", "MAN OF ARAN", and "LOUISIANA STORY". In the presentation of short films, emphasis was placed on Canadian-made International Award winners.

The Society has realized that the film—as one of the fine arts—is a medium for portraying realities of human existence rather than fairy tales. It is felt that new generations will benefit greatly by this knowledge, and will be able to expand still further the scope of the film. The high degree of conscious thinking and maturity within the Society marks it out as one of the outstanding clubs of our campus.

THE ROCKET SOCIETY

President: D. G. Shacter

1955-56 was a busy year for the Society. All activities were heavily attended and included several tours and film showings.

Conducted by Professor Donald Mordell, the members first visited McGill Gas Dynamics laboratories, where they were shown various phases of research work and inspected several jet engines. This was followed by a visit to the Bristol Aero Engines Limited. In both cases transportation was provided by C.A.I. The Canadian Pratt & Whitney Company supplied the Society with a film on the history of aviation, which was shown for two days at the College. The Society also arranged visits to the Montreal General Hospital to patients interested in aircraft and rockets and, as part of this visit, showed a technical film.

Practical work included the testing of a small rocket engine and the completion of the construction of one large rocket engine with over a hundred pounds thrust. A library on jets, rockets and related topics was started by the Society with the contribution of several publications by Mr. F. W. Moore of C.A.I.

Some members of the C.A.I. offered the College, on behalf of the Rocket Society, full equipment and necessary funds for the construction of a subsonic wind tunnel. The tunnel would be so designed that it would permit the construction of a transsonic and a small supersonic tunnel. Full equipment and technical assistance were offered by the Institute. The only thing the College had to supply was the space for the project. Unfortunately the request for space was not granted. We only hope that, with the new building in use, there will be more room available, so that the growth of the Society will not continue to be inhibited in this manner.

THE LITERARY SOCIETY

President: M. Lavut

The Literary Society of Sir George Williams College has enjoyed a pleasant and reasonably fruitful year. Under the presidency of Mr. M. Lavut, the Society arranged eleven programs. Several of these had a very large attendance, with up to forty members and guests present. The programs included a tape recording of a speech by Mr. A. M. Klein on his poetry, a speech by Mr. Ramshaw on Mr. J. Joyce's "Ulysses", a recording of "The Lady's not for Burning" by Mr. Christopher Fry, and an address by Mr. I. Layton on his latest book "The Bull Calf".

All of us, both the members and the executive, have enjoyed the year and we hope for another equally good one next year.

THE PRE-LAW CLUB

President: Syd Wise

1955-56 marked the second year the Pre-Law Club has been in existence in the College. Due to the large number of potential lawyers in the College, hearty interest necessitated the continuation of this society. Official membership numbered approximately 25 members.

Numerous highlights climaxed the of the law club this year. The main interests of the majority of students followed the same path. Which law school to attend? What potential benefits can be derived on the Quebec area? The question of advisable undergraduate courses to aid students in law school was also dealt with in considerable length.

Law students from McGill University and the University of Toronto addressed the society on the merits of each university stressing also frank by the disadvantages encountered in each. Prominent Montreal lawyers spoke on financial benefits and opportunities in the expanding Canadian industry. A mock trial as well as addresses by notable city officials are on the future agenda of the society.

In brief, what we are trying to do is to enlighten potential lawyers in all aspects of the legal profession. It grants us a peek through the door through which we are to enter.

THE INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

President: Peter Krohn

On December 3, 1955 a meeting was held for the formation of The United Nations, International Relations Club. It was decided at this meeting that this proposed name be changed to The International Relations Club. The club was to be affiliated with the Montreal branch of The United Nations Association and The Canadian Association of Students for The United Nations.

The purpose of the Club as stated in the constitution is "to foster a wider knowledge of international affairs, both the political and social aspects of it.

At the first meeting a film about the United Nations "Workshop for Peace" was shown.

During the year the members of the Club heard many interesting speakers, amongst them Mr. Rene Levesque, a special events reporter of the C.B.C., Mr. Yehuda Gaulan, consul general of Israel to Montreal, Professor Maxwell Cohen of McGill University, and a representative of The Labour Progressive Party.

Looking back over the year, the members of the Club believe its future shows great promise.

THE CROSS IS BENT

h. d. clarke

Cecil Banner was angry. His thick fingers drummed a steady tattoo on his solid mahogany desk. One hundred and eighty pounds of carefully nurtured massaged flesh quivered in its hand tailored English fabric covering. He flipped the intercom switch.

"Bill, bring me the Zenith file".

Banner relaxed, a pleasant expression came over his face. He examined his fingernails. The manicurist had done a good job.

A moment later Bill entered the office; he walked quickly across the thick carpet and handed the dossier to Banner.

"You didn't have to rush over Bill, sit down a moment".

"It's quite alright Mr. Banner, I knew that you would want the file right away. I think that I had better get back to work".

Bill retreated and quietly closed the door.

Banner leafed through the papers—Zenith was getting too big. As head of Goliath Industries he had to nip these upstart construction firms in the bud; otherwise Goliath would no longer dominate the building field.

He picked up the phone—dialed—and waited.

"Hallo Roddy? It's Cecil. How's the curling going?"

"Ha. I told you—you'll be a fine skip!"

"Say Roddy—you know that Zenith matter...?"

"Yes—yes—right. Well they're getting too big—cutting into the business—I want them out."

"Don't give me a song and dance. You heard what I said—OUT."

"Buy them or break them; I don't give a damn!"

"I know it will cost—I'll write you a cheque. All right, cash. Don't worry—it'll be enough."

"Well, get going on it. I'll handle everything here."

"Alright Roddy—we'll have to get up a game one of these days. Uh huh. Thanks."

Slowly he replaced the receiver—the drumming ceased and he smiled. He flipped the intercom switch.

"Say Ruth, come here a minute."

Seconds later his secretary, Ruth, entered.

Ruth was neither beautiful nor plain—men would call her interesting. She stalked across the carpet. Her figure was perfectly silhouetted by the darkgreen knitted dress. Banner thought her very interesting.

"Ruth honey, I've done it again." Banner was bubbling. He snapped his fingers—the sound sharp and crackling.

"Just like that Baby, I crush them all—like a bug. How about hitting the town to-night Ruthy? The big spots—then go to your place for a few drinks—watch T.V.—you know..."

"Well", Ruth hesitated, her mind furiously whirling. "I don't know Mr. Banner. The apartment is in such a mess—so dowdy looking. It really needs a new living room rug and the T.V. set hasn't been working so hot."

"How much!" Banner's voice ripped through the air like a cannon shot.

"What..."

"I said how much to fix it up—three hundred? Here's a hundred now." Banner peeled two bills from a roll. "I'll give you the rest tonight, okay? I'll pick up a couple of bottles—see you at seven. Oh, Ruthy, phone Mrs. Banner like a good girl. Tell her I have an important conference—some men from New York—make it good."

"Sure Mr. Banner, I'm sure we'll have fun tonight..." With angelic purity she gave him a heavenly smile. On the way out she stopped to adjust the seam of her stocking. Out of the corner of her eye she looked to see if Banner was watching. He was.

II

"I'm telling you officer, I wasn't going over thirty". Banner's face portrayed his innocence. His voice and actions clearly indicated that he was a wronged man.

"Look, sir", the police officer was young—too young, "I clocked you at forty at that last intersection, let's see your licence."

"So you're Cecil Banner! I am pleased to meet you sir, my brother-in-law bought a house from you last year. Likes it, too."

"Look officer I'm a busy man." Banner glanced at his watch. The solid gold figures spelled out seven-thirty. "I'm late for an appointment. I'm sure you made an error—" however let bygones be bygones... here's a tenner for your trouble. Take the wife out on me."

"You know I can't do that Mr. Banner", the officer protested—although his voice was not as strong as his words.

"Here, son", Banner fished out another bill, "here's fifteen—take it. Give me a call at the office and let me know how your brother is making out. I promise that I will be more careful."

"Well, alright this time Mr. Banner." He pocketed the money. "But be careful, the roads are very slippery."

Banner rolled up the window of the big car and slowly started off. He couldn't help saying to himself: "Sucker. Cops: they're all the same—give them a buck and they'll lick your boots."

The car picked up speed, passing other motorists. The speedometer read forty.

III

People swarmed through the department store. Smelly fetid bodies, pushing and showing to get what they wanted. The air was heavy and dust-laden. Christmas shopping had begun.

"Just what are you trying to say?" Banner was livid. "If I say I want them, I want them—where's the manager?"

The salesgirl, mediocre at best, her reedy voice stretched to a shrill falsetto, blurted—"I don't know sir."

"Find him! Don't just stand there girl—go!" Banner's finger poked through the atmosphere. "And don't come back till you find him."

The clerk flew off like a rabbit.

Banner muttered, "Damn stores—they take your money—then don't give you any service. I wonder how they keep their customers? Where the devil is that girl?" He cursed silently.

The seedy-looking girl arrived with a man in a grey suit. His red tie had a spot on it.

"My name's Banner, are you the manager?" He wondered how the man had ever got the job.

"Yes sir! What seems to be the trouble?"

Banner bellowed, "I bought a dozen shirts here last week—paid cash. Where are they? You promised delivery in ONE day—I haven't got them."

"Well sir I guess that there has been a delay..." The manager was cut off.

"You are damn right there has been a delay—but I want those shirts—what sort of a place are you running here?"

The manager tried to soothe him. "Mr. Banner, I promise that you will get those shirts in the morning."

Banner seethed. "If I don't get them, I am going to take my business elsewhere."

Like an aroused bear, Banner rumbled off.

IV

"We think that you're the man, Cecil. Forceful—dynamic. A pillar of the community. We need a man with Christian principles—moral fibre. There's no question about it." The minister was emphatic.

"But an Elder!" Banner was taken aback. "I only do my best you know—try to support the Church—help out that sort of thing."

The minister put his hand on Banner's shoulder, "I know that you do Cecil, but you can do a lot more for this Church—be a leader—organize. The Board has selected you because you are the man to fill the vacancy."

"Alright", condescended Banner, "I'll do it—for the Church."

The congregation was hushed, all eyes were focussed on the front of the Church.

"Do you, Cecil Banner, promise to uphold our faith by moral actions and deeds", the minister intoned.

"I will do the utmost of my ability." Banner answered strongly—but his mind was elsewhere....

"...and are you willing to give of your resources freely, for the benefit of the Congregation." The words snapped Banner back to reality.

"I am willing." Banner looked about him and thought to himself, "I wonder what Ruth is doing tonight? What a girl." His mind rushed through endless space filled with Ruth and others...

"...an Elder of our Church!"

Banner turned—and saw the admiration in the eyes of the congregation. In him they saw a leader—a charitable man, honest, sincere. The new Elder, with firm steps, walked down the centre aisle towards the rear of the Church. His back was straight, his eyes had warmth, his thoughts... were eons away.

"This should help business", he thought, "an Elder—of an important Church... I wonder what Ruth will wear tonight..."

He walked down the aisle—a good Christian—a leader—a pillar of the Church.

A BAFFLING SCHISM

"WAIT!" I cried . . .
The crest of swell heaved to catch a trough of moonlight slimmering by.

All aspens
freely press into the sky tho'
the two are unlike each other.

Earth and sky,
an eternal togetherness where man and woman
so often walk alone.

How awkward
this simple thing of darkness unwitting foil to nimble spirit,
that heartless jester.

When I turn to dust,
whisk me
to moonlit sea
if perhaps you relent,

and a moment ere I sink

so I may gnaw at leisure some part of you in my den.

THE NINTH OF MAY

In the cold hour before dawn, the city was strangely quiet. The reek of gun smoke from its tortured streets assailed the nostrils. It was the morning of the ninth of May. Exhausted, the city shivered with death and hope. Like rats, people prowled in cellars. Doctors silently moved about on their grimy mission of mercy.

It all had commenced a few days before, on the fifth of May. Victory was near. The heart of Europe was the last stronghold of the enemy. Countless ears strained as they listened to the voice of freedom. A whisper ran through the city, a murmur slipped along the streets, a shivering cry burst out in the squares, then a tidal roar shook the very foundations of that ageless metropolis. The people arose, once again to throw off their hated foe; the people, unarmed, but with the hate and fear of the last five years in their minds. They stormed the prisons, freed the ancient seat of kings, proclaimed freedom in the cathedrals and built barricades in the streets. For the enemy, beaten, yet trained to resist, rose like a dying beast in a last valiant, desperate effort. He was strong and the people were forced to fight with bare arms against machine guns. They fought with drunken courage, they seized the radio network, proclaiming that they, the people, had risen against the beast. But help was far away.

The fifth, the sixth, the seventh, the eighth, each held its long list of dead. Now, in the morning of the ninth, the city was on the brink of victory, and tired. Light slowly intensified. Barricades, torn telephone wires, ruins of houses, all stood like dark silhouettes against an awakening sky. Then a small column of smoke arose above one point in the city. Another, another and yet another—soon a hundred of them had sprung up. Voices came through the ominous silence. The tired populace rose again, for the enemy was taking his last revenge; he wanted to set fire to the city—but it was ancient, stone, and scorned their flames.

The sun shone suspended—red, bloody above the tormented city. Liberating tanks roared along the streets. Victory was complete. But the suspense of years broke, hate was unleashed, people changed to beasts drunk with victory. Gallows were set in the public square and the hated jailer was sentenced to die. Public acclaim dictated this. A crowd milled about expectantly.

In the heart of the city two children awoke. They slipped unobtrusively out of doors. The disorder and the tumult of the streets frightened them, but then curiosity overcame this fear. They crept along the streets, dodging the crowds, until they reached the square. Soon they climbed the fence for a better view. Just then a roar burst from the mob as the jailer was brought forward. He stood under the gallows. A priest, black and solemn, came forward towards him. The mob hushed to silence as indistinguishable words passed between the condemned and the priest. The knot was prepared, the eyes of the accused were covered. All was in readiness. Suddenly an eerie shriek of terror shot from the condemned man as he sought to plead for mercy in the language hated by the people. Unrelenting, people, who had lived for five years in the terrorizing shadow of this man, heaved a unanimous "no" at him. The knot slipped, the body slumped, the legs twitched—he was still. Silenced descended.

Down the fence jumped two lithe bodies and squirmed guiltily from the mob. Silently, they ran to the park where they had often played. Arriving there, they found it deserted. Breathless, they stopped. A piece of chalk lay under one of the garden benches. Simultaneously, both children saw it. Diving towards it, the inevitable scramble resulted. Soon the familiar hop-scotch pattern trailed from the chalk. The children played, absorbed, only occasionally disturbed by the dim, distant, cry of the mob.

WEST INDIAN WEEK

During the past college year, Sir George students have witnessed many worthwhile extra-curricular events which have evoked many complimentary comments from both student leaders and the student body itself. High on the list of these outstanding events was the West Indian Week which was, as the name implies, a week-long exhibition put on by the very energetic and enthusiastic members of the West Indian Club here at Sir George.

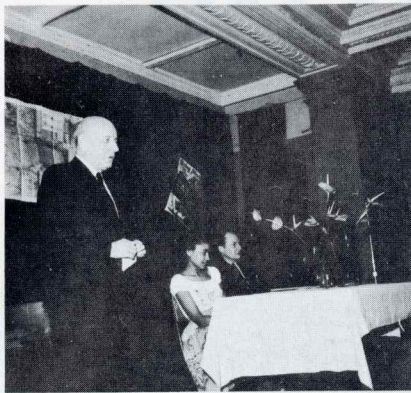

A comprehensive and entertaining program was arranged by the Club whose main purpose was to acquaint other students from a more northerly clime with the true aspects of life in the sunny isles of the Caribbean. For the sponsors, the West Indians themselves, this exhibit was fraught with significance, coming as it did on the threshold of their island's affiliation into the Federation of the British Caribbean. The ample display was proof that the West Indians are more than anxious to assume the burdens of responsibility in the world sphere.

The opening ceremony was performed by Dean Henry F. Hall, who expressed his great admiration for this ambitious college, group who, along with other ethnic groups, had given Sir George a truly cosmopolitan atmosphere. The Dean expressed the desire of many present when he remarked that it was his fond hope that he might, one day, visit the islands of the West Indies. The exhibit, which was staged in Budge Hall, was attended by Mr. R. Stollmeyer, the West Indian Trade Commissioner in Canada, who very graciously consented to act as Master of Ceremonies for the entertainment which followed. In accepting this task, Mr. Stollmeyer very ably demonstrated his intimate knowledge of the West Indies and his irrespressible good humour.

The entertainment, which followed the opening ceremonies, was in the best traditions of the West Indies and featured a strong accent on both song and dance. Soon the catching rhythms of the calypso were ringing out across the confines of the hall with the contagious qualities which induce audience participation. The entertainers gave their listeners a great insight into the folklore of the islands. To complement the program, several classical piano selections were rendered with great skill and sensitivity. After the program had concluded, refreshments (including a fascinating West Indian concoction) were served to all those present.

The display itself was arranged on tables ranged along the sides of the hall. Many travel companies whose business is directly connected with the Caribbean islands displayed inviting folders and literature which gave the student visitor a visual insight into the beauty spots of the West Indies. A further visual insight was given later in the week when films of the West Indies by B.O.A.C. and the Aluminum Company were shown to audiences in the Willingdon Room. For the week itself, Trans-Canada Airlines flew to the exhibit exotic tropical flowers which graced many of the display tables. Products produced entirely in the West Indies were also a strong focal point in the exhibition. The greatest single thing about the exhibit which comes to mind, is the tireless enthusiasm which the West Indians displayed. Reflected in their products and their talents, this is, without a doubt, the most admirable inherent characteristic of the people. It is the firm hope of students here at Sir George that the West Indian students will once again favour them with another "encore" of West Indian Week.—I.C.S.M.

ATHLETICS

Athletics

MAGNUS FLYNN, DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Perhaps the highlight of the College Athletic year was the victory of the College Soccer Team in the Intercollegiate Invitational League. Using a combination of Day and Evening Students, our old friend Prof. Finnie coached the team into the play-offs and won over R.M.C. for the right to meet McGill in the finals. Their consequent victory in that series gave them the League Championship. During the season, the team beat McGill, R.M.C., C.M.R., Loyola and dropped a one goal decision to MacDonald College.

George MacIntosh, the flying banker's son, led the Georgian entry into second place in the Ottawa St. Lawrence Track Meet by winning the 880 and one mile runs. George graduates this year and Sir George loses one of its top Intercollegiate performers when he receives his sheepskin.

The Hockey Team, coached by former N.H.L. stars Buddy O'Connor and Ray Getliffe, romped to second place in the Conference with a 5—3 record. This team will constitute a real threat in Hockey circles from here on as the building program is really under way. The only member of the club to graduate is hard digging Don Duffy who, by the way, won an Athletic Commendation for his efforts this season.

In Swimming the Intercollegiate three man team entered the Conference Swim Meet and, much to everyone's surprise, ended in third place with 12½ points. This was the first time the meet had been convened by the College and the Georgian Staff of Dave Carson and Bob Vale were ably assisted by Glen Wood (Arts '48).

The Winter Carnival was won, this year, by Science and a lot of the credit for their showing goes to Les (B.Sc. '56) Melia who placed in every event and ended up the easy winner of the Janna Trophy as the Carnival's Outstanding Athlete. Woodsman Melia also led the College Team in the annual International Invitational Meet and the Team finished in third place in a fourteen team event.

The end of the year saw the annual Awards Night being combined with the Day and Evening Student Societies Awards and, for the first time, we had representatives of the Board of Governors involved in the Awards proceedings. Highlights were the Gill Trophy to Alec Mikalachki, the Allan Smith Memorial to Alec Gilbert on his selection as the Most Valuable Player on the Intercollegiate Hockey Team, the Joyce Trophy to Fencer Gordon Diver and the Intercollegiate Rifle Individual Trophy to Georgian Irving Huss.

Athletic Board

The Student Athletic Board has jurisdiction over both women's and men's athletics at Sir George Williams College, although they are directly responsible to the Student Council.

This board has the right to approve or disapprove of any athletic program and budgets, questions, new ideas and improvements are also presented to the Athletic Board for acceptance.

As the athletic program has expanded throughout the years the A.B. has been attempting to set up sub-committees to handle the individual sports to ease the pressure on it. The necessity of such a move has become increasingly apparent with the growing number of athletic activities and individual participation in them.

Besides organizing the Athletic Nights which were instituted last year the Athletic Board set up the 1955-6 program which added Soccer to the list of activities. Plans are now being laid to have curling and possibly floor hockey brought into the program next year.

Hockey

Back—Andre Dumouchil, Manager; Hector Willis; Murray Johnson; Ray Leshinsky; Erle Laviolette, Captain; Rick Christensen; Bob Perry; Buddy O'Connor, Coach; John Getliffe.
Absent—Ray Getliffe, Coach; Tom Levins, manager.

Rising from the doldrums of last season, the 1955-56 edition of the Hockey Georgians attained the highest spot in league standings for a College team when they completed the schedule in second place, runners up to the perennial champion Loyola Warriors.

The team which was under the direction of two former professional players, Buddy O'Connor and Ray Getliffe, carried over seven members of the previous year's team and added several new players. O'Connor and Getliffe made the best use of the material presented them and what the team itself lacked in class they more than made up for in fight and desire to win.

With a record of five wins and three losses they edged out C.M.R. in the battle for the runner-up position but fell short in trying to catch the undefeated Loyola team, which itself after many years of overpowering the opposition has finally come back with the rest of the league.

Alex Gilbert set a league record when he chalked up two shutouts during the schedule and ended up with a 2.50 goals against record. He was the outstanding member of the team. Defenceman Erle Laviolette and Doug Pringle rounded out the top three, with Don Duffy who failed to make last year's squad the most improved player on the team.

Basketball

Front—Dan O'Connell, Bob Gariety, Jim Hawkes.
 Second—Magnus Flynn, Coach; Al Mikalachki; Dick MacKay; Dave Sealy, manager.
 Back—Pat Baker, Don Bryant, Jim McBride.

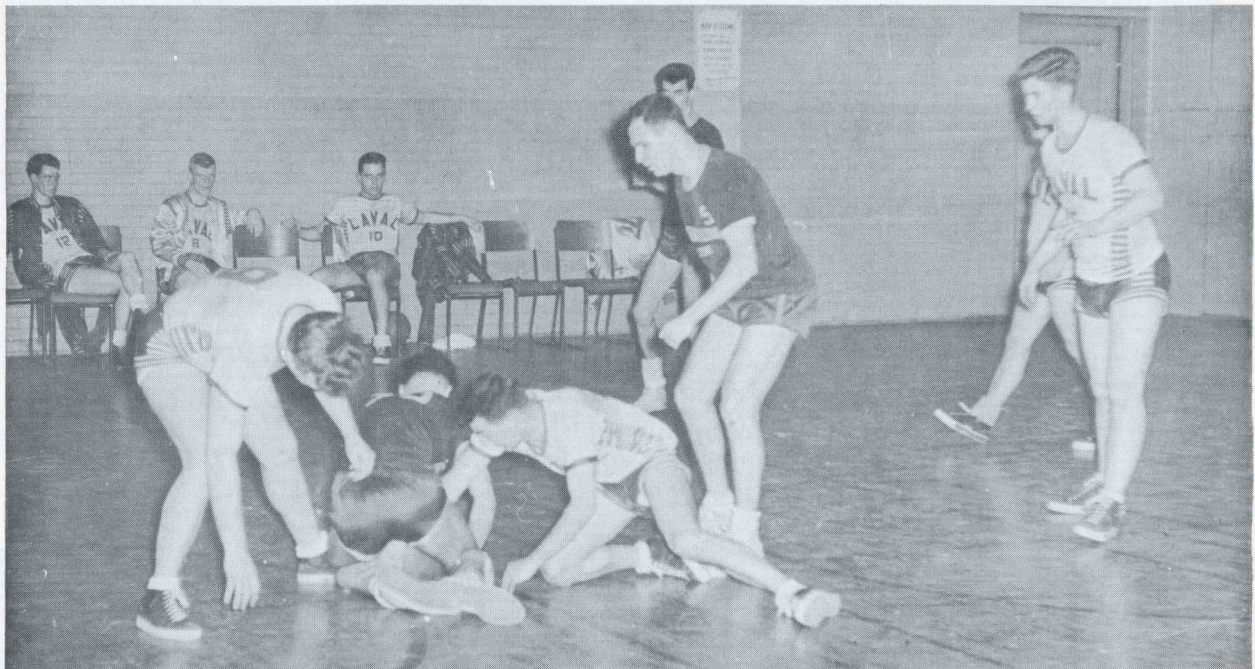

Always a bridesmaid and never a bride. For the second consecutive year the College basketball team finished on top of the league, tied with another team but on both occasions it folded when the pressure was on and the championships went elsewhere.

After starting off on the wrong foot and dropping a contest to Ottawa U. in the capital the team went through seven undefeated games and tied with Ottawa U. for top spot each having an eight and one record. Then the playoffs and before the final round was played the Georgians were no longer in contention.

The only bright spot is that the team will loose only two of its players and therefore should be very much in the running next year when the finals are to be played.

Al Mikalachki and Don Bryant spearheaded the Georgian efforts throughout the season but the team as a whole lacked that extra drive in the clutch to come up with the championship.

This team is one of the best in College history and will be long remembered by those who saw them work on the court.

Women's Basketball

Back—Heather Mason; Gwen Lord; Esther Waxman; Judy Salter; Marion Slonosky; Nancy MacKenzie.

One of the two championships won by college teams this year was the Women's Open Basketball League which was captured by the Georgettes for the second consecutive year, when they defeated Marianapolis College in the playoffs.

The team which was coached by Jane Hammond lost only one game during the schedule while tying another and winning the remaining five. Hiss Hammond succeeded Doug Barnhart as coach this season.

A major task faces the team next year as they lose their two, four-year veterans, Fran Williams and Gwen Lord, who were the outstanding players in past years.

The newest addition to the College's athletic program, Soccer, was set up this year as an entry in the Ottawa St. Lawrence conference and under the coaching of Prof. J. G. Finnie finished a champions. The conference was experimenting this fall and thus it operated as an exhibition league while no official trophy was awarded to the winners.

The Georgians ended up with a 5-1-1 record for the season and the team edged McGill 2-1 in the final game to take the title. The league will operate next season as a recognized organization but it is doubtful if the Sir George entry will be a full time basis. This is to allow the Night division students to participate.

Rifle Club

All eyes on the target — Errol Feldman; Irving Huss and Don Leith

The Rifle Club of S.G.W.C. donated the Canadian Intercollegiate Rifle League Trophy this year but failed to hold it as they tied for second place behind McGill University in the Intercollegiate Championship.

Irving Huss was the top marksman with a 99.6% mark as he scored 1593 out of 1600. He was presented with the Silver Cup from the University of Saskatchewan awarded each year to the person with the highest average during a league season.

In the regular weekly meets the participation increased considerably from the past years, with both students and faculty turning out.

Dave Davies; Pete Bubalo; Howie Kirkpatrick and Les Modolo, Coach

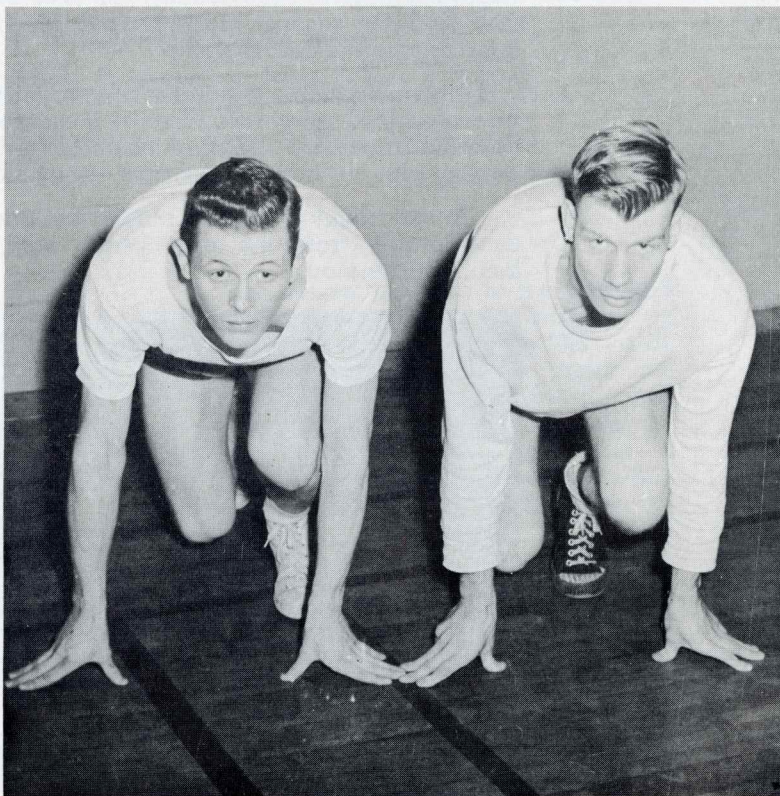

Swimming

Faced with the unexpected withdrawal of two members of his team, Coach Les Modolo had to settle for fourth place in the Ottawa St. Lawrence Swimming Competition held in the Y.M.C.A. Pool. Modolo who is returning next year expects a contending team because of three anticipated entrants into the College as well as having this year's squad as a nucleus. Giving their all Messrs. Davis, Kirkpatrick and Bubalo just found that they were short of manpower to launch a contending team.

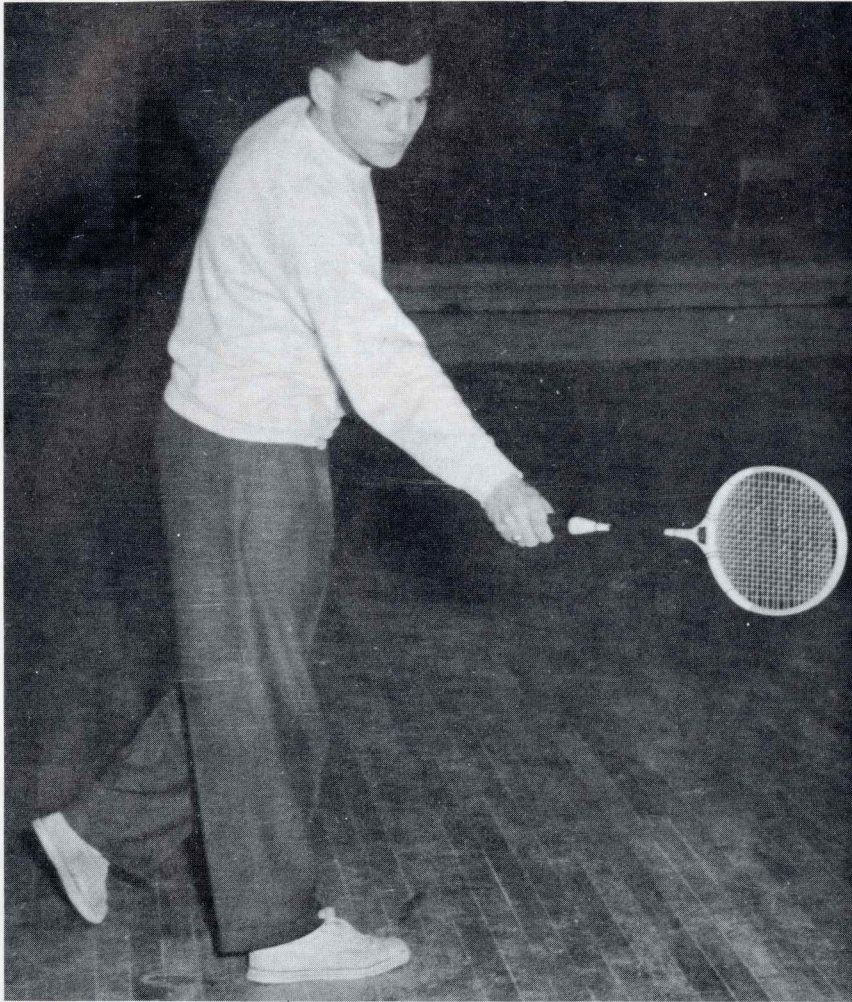

Track and Field

George MacIntosh was the outstanding member of the Track and Field Team winning the one mile and 880 yard events leading the College Track team to second place in the Ottawa St. Lawrence Track Meet. He gained 10 of the Georgian's 31 points.

Other points were earned through second and third placings by other members of the team who were:- Bob MacKay; John Stammer; Art Brown; Ken Taylor; John Brush; Jack Stiles; Ron Peirson; Howie Kirkpatrick; Erle Laviolette; Perry Samberg; George MacIntosh and Reg Gates, Coach.

Howie Kirkpatrick and George MacIntosh

One-man Champ-Art Brown

Badminton

The Intra-mural Badminton Tournament was a one-man show this year as Art Brown easily walked through the singles matches and almost single-handedly copped the doubles crown.

Brown was in a class by himself as he toyed with his opponents right from the first round to the end of the tournament. In the doubles he teamed with Les Melis to beat Al Mikalachki and R. B. Young for the crown.

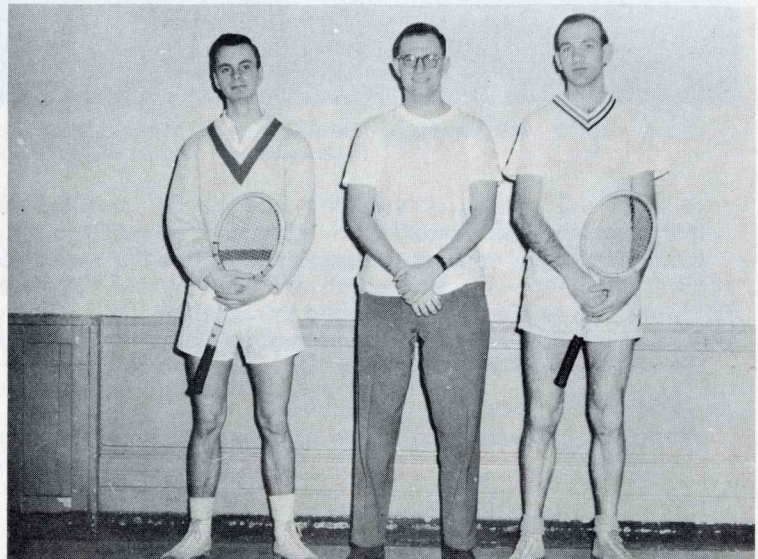

Fran Williams was winner in the women's singles for the second consecutive year. She defeated Judy Salter in the finals 11-6.

In the mixed doubles it was Art Brown and Gwen Lord as winners when they beat Erle Laviolette and Diane Matheson 15-10, 15-8.

Tennis

Art Mann was the outstanding player in the College Tennis Tournament winning the championship with relative ease as he defeated Al Mikalachki in the final round 6-3, 6-1.

Rain postponed the singles matches in the Intercollegiate Tournament for the second straight year, but before the events were called off the S.G.W.C. doubles team of Art Mann and Andre Dumouchil beat R.M.C. 6-4, 6-2. No winner was declared in the tournament.

Andre Dumouchil; Al Mikalachki; Art Mann

Interfaculty Sports

Using their years of experience to advantage and enlisting the aid of several members of the bookstore the Faculty Volleyball team swept through the Interfaculty League to take the crown. The team which was lead by Profs. Zweig, McCullough and Potter sent the Commerce and Fellowship squads down in successive contests to win the championship. Other members of the team were M. Flynn, D. Bryant, A. Mikalachki and J. McBride.

Finishing third in regular league play the Faculty team was unbeatable when the pressure was on. They topped Fellowship in straight sets 11—5 and 11—9 and went on to beat the Commerce team 11—7 and 11—9.

Members of the team were:- A. Mann; R. Pierson; V. Bryant; B. Wier; G. Grey; R. Glansdorp; D. Carson; R. Taylor and H. Kirkpatrick.

Taking the best of three game finals in two straight the Fellowship Basketball team led by Art Mann, an ex-Georgian, dropped the Science Squad to win the Interfaculty Championship.

The Fellowship team finished on top of the league and had too much power and experience for Science, when it came to the final round. Fellowship were outstanding and had one of the best teams ever assembled for Interfaculty play.

Fencing

Entering the Provincial Class "C" Foil Championships at Immaculate Conception Hall the S.G.W.C. Fencing club placed five competitors in the semi-finals and two of these advanced to the finals before being defeated.

It took an extra playoff before Les Melia had to settle for the runner-up position. John Brblik was the second fencer to make the final round. The other three to make the semi-finals were Jacques Lenoir, Joseph Rozek and Gordon Driver.

The Fencing club had more than 25 fencers meeting two a week under the coaching of Roland Asselin.

Golf

With the College Golf Tournament failing to supply adequate replacements for Garry Hillhouse and Bob Hill no team was entered in the Intercollegiate Tourney at Lennoxville. Trevor Lloyd and Garry DeGeer were back from last year's team.

Lloyd won the title this year but was followed closely by DeGeer, Jacques Bonhomme. The turnout was one of the best mainly due to the sunny weather the day of the tournament.

Owls

Although they didn't win any championships, Dave Watson's Evening Owls finished the season with a 5-3 record in league play and gave a good account of themselves in every game they played.

The team which was under Watson's direction for the first time was comprised of many old timers from past teams in both the day and evening divisions making the coaches task just that much more difficult. Both the team and coach did commendable jobs.

The Team was comprised of: Alf Sliwinski; Les Modolo; Dave Davies; Don Brooks; Jack Silver; Ron Hodgman; Tony Lugar; Mike O'Toole.

Junior Basketball

After starting off on the wrong foot at the beginning of the season Art Johnson's Junior Basketball Team showed flashes of top form and ended up in second place in the Junior M.B.L. this year.

Johnson, an ex-U.B.C. star in his first year as coach had difficulty in getting the team to roll but once he did they were contenders from there in. The team had three holdovers from last year's team in Cec April, Mike Warren; Ed Heft. Others in the squad were: Ken Copeland; Brian Hough; George Ursaki; Hal Goldstein; Bob Perry; Larry Nachshen.

The season which the Junior Georgians had this year can be called disastrous, but the prospects for the future are termed bright. Art Johnson, an ex-U.B.C. star was brought in to coach the team and with what material he had to work with an outstanding job was done.

Near the end of the season the team showed signs of being a top contender in the league with the addition of a couple of top players.

SMITH MEMORIAL WINNER

Alexander "Leaky" Gilbert

For the second consecutive year, Alex "Leaky" Gilbert was named winner of the Alan Smith Memorial trophy annually awarded to the member of the hockey team, adjudged by his teammates to be the most valuable player. Last year Gilbert shared the trophy with John Killingbeck.

Since the trophy was first donated, three years ago the goaler of the Georgians has been named as winner or co-winner. The first to hold the honor was Cathol "Kayo" Weightman who played goal for the 1952-53 and 1953-54 teams.

Gilbert who came up through the ranks of West Hill High School and Junior "C" Canadiens was the first goaler in the league to have two shutouts in a season when he blanked Bishops 1-0 and 2-0. He allowed 20 goals in the eight league games for a 2.50 goals against average, the best in the circuit.

GILL TROPHY WINNER

Al Mikalachki

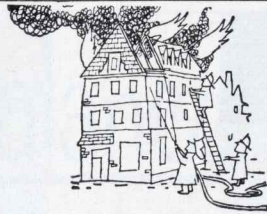

Named the outstanding athlete in the College for 1955-56 was Al Mikalachki for his brilliant performances with the Intercollegiate Basketball team, as well as finishing runner up in the Tennis tournament and participating in the Interfaculty Volleyball and Badminton competition.

For these feats Mikalachki was presented the Gill Trophy as the top athlete in the College. Last year it was awarded to Fran Williams.

Mikalachki was the top scorer for the basketball team and it was felt by many, how goes Micky, so go the Georgians. He was named to the first All-star team in the M.B.L. and displayed a sharp game of tennis.

The same as those who preceeded him, Mikalachki maintains the high standard of those who have held the coveted Gill Trophy.
